摘要

The Detection and Response Associate Director will play a strategic role within the Novartis Cyber Security Operations Center (CSOC), a globally integrated security organization dedicated to protecting Novartis against sophisticated and evolving cyber threats.

This position combines deep technical expertise, strategic influence, and AI-driven innovation to advance global threat detection, investigation, and incident response capabilities. The role will drive operational excellence, champion emerging technologies and intelligent automation, and contribute to the continuous evolution of cyber defense at Novartis.

Working closely with global cybersecurity leadership, engineering teams, and key business stakeholders, the Associate Director will lead strategic initiatives, strengthen cyber resilience, and drive meaningful improvements across security operations. The position is designed for an experienced cybersecurity professional passionate about solving complex challenges, advancing innovation, and delivering measurable security impact.
