#LI-Hybrid

Location: Basel, Switzerland

In this role, you will act as a strategic People & Organization (P&O) partner to senior Development leaders, shaping how complex business challenges are translated into impactful people and organizational strategies and solutions.
Working across a highly matrixed and networked environment, you will shape organizational effectiveness, integration activities, and the evolution of human-AI ways of working, creating value through strong business acumen, influence, and collaboration.
You will influence critical leadership and talent decisions, ensure networked teams operate effectively, and proactively identify where P&O can create the greatest impact on business and portfolio priorities.

About the Role

Key Responsibilities

- Partner with senior Development leaders to understand complex business challenges and translate them into clear, pragmatic P&O strategies and solutions that deliver measurable business value.
- Drive organizational effectiveness across networked and matrixed teams, optimizing how teams collaborate, make decisions, and deliver against shared business and portfolio priorities.
- Act as the P&O business lead for strategic integration activities, shaping the people and organizational approach required to successfully integrate acquired assets and capabilities into the organization.
- Shape the future of human-AI ways of working, identifying how AI can evolve roles, workflows, capabilities, and collaboration while maximizing value for the organization.
- Influence critical organizational and talent decisions, including senior and business-critical appointments, organizational design considerations, and integration priorities.
- Navigate complex stakeholder environments and influence without formal authority, building alignment across senior leaders, P&O partners, and cross-functional teams.
- Proactively identify where P&O can create the greatest value, recognizing emerging business challenges and opportunities and responding with agility rather than relying on a predefined or traditional P&O remit.
- Bring clarity to complexity, evaluating different solutions and trade-offs and translating them into clear recommendations, decisions, and expected business outcomes.

Essential Requirements

- Significant P&O/HR business partnering or strategic HR experience within the life sciences industry. Direct experience within Development is advantageous but not essential.
- Strong business acumen, with the ability to understand complex business problems, communicate in business terms, evaluate trade-offs, and connect P&O solutions to tangible business and portfolio outcomes.
- Demonstrated ability to influence and partner with very senior leaders, including constructively challenging perspectives and building alignment without relying on formal authority.
- Proven experience operating successfully within complex, highly matrixed and networked organizations, with the ability to navigate ambiguity and competing priorities.
- Strong strategic thinking and problem-solving capabilities, with the ability to simplify complexity and translate challenges into practical solutions.
- Highly collaborative and inclusive leadership style, actively seeking diverse perspectives and using them to strengthen decisions and outcomes.
- Agile and adaptable mindset, with the ability to proactively identify where to contribute, shift priorities as business needs evolve, and operate effectively where the remit is not always predefined.
- Strong communication and stakeholder-management skills, with the credibility to engage at senior leadership level.
