摘要

As a Medical Science Liaison (MSL), you will play a key role in building and strengthening scientific relationships with Medical Experts and healthcare professionals across your territory.

You will lead high-quality scientific engagement, provide balanced and evidence-based medical information, support clinical research activities, and help implement medical and educational strategies aligned with the country medical strategy.

This is a field-based role covering West, North and East Yorkshire, the North East of England and Scotland.

About the Role

Major accountabilities

Your responsibilities will include:

- Build and maintain trusted scientific relationships with Medical Experts (MEs) and other relevant healthcare professionals, providing high-quality medical and scientific information, and gathering insights to help shape strategy.
- Identify and map Medical Experts and key accounts across the territory, recognising opportunities for appropriate scientific collaboration based on identified medical needs.
- Develop and execute strategic Medical Expert engagement plans, effectively prioritising stakeholders in alignment with the country medical strategy.
- Respond appropriately and compliantly to unsolicited requests for medical and scientific information.
- Support Novartis clinical research programmes by helping to optimise clinical trial execution and providing scientific and educational support to potential and active study sites, in collaboration with Clinical Operations.
- Facilitate the Investigator-Initiated Trial (IIT) process following investigator requests and in accordance with applicable processes and requirements.
- Act as a medical and scientific resource for field-based and cross-functional colleagues.
- Work collaboratively across the matrix organisation while maintaining the appropriate scientific independence of the Medical function.
- Ensure technical complaints, adverse events and special-case scenarios related to Novartis products are reported within 24 hours of receipt, in line with applicable requirements.

Key performance indicators

Success in this role will include:

- Consistently working in accordance with Novartis Ethics, Risk & Compliance requirements, applicable policies and local regulations.
- Successful delivery against agreed annual objectives and targets for medical activities.
- High-quality and strategically focused engagement with Medical Experts and key accounts.
- Effective collaboration with Medical, Clinical Operations and other relevant cross-functional stakeholders.

What you ’ ll bring to the role

You will be a scientifically credible and engaging professional who can build trusted relationships with external experts while operating confidently within a complex, cross-functional environment.

You will ideally bring:

- A relevant scientific, medical or healthcare-related degree; an advanced scientific qualification such as a PhD, PharmD or MD would be required
- Experience within Medical Affairs, an MSL role, clinical research, academia, healthcare or another relevant scientific environment would be advantageous.
- Strong scientific communication and presentation skills, with the ability to discuss complex clinical and scientific information with healthcare professionals.

- Excellent relationship-building and stakeholder-management capabilities.
- A strong understanding of the importance of compliance, scientific exchange and appropriate engagement with healthcare professionals.
- The ability to work independently in a field-based role while collaborating effectively as part of a wider cross-functional team.
- Understanding of the workings of the NHS in Scotland and England.
- Candidates must be located within the territory Yorkshire, North East England and Scotland or prepared to relocate for the role.
