Job Posting Title: Lead ERC Academy & Training

Location: Dublin

#LI-Hybrid

This role is based in Dublin, Ireland. Novartis is unable to offer relocation support for this role: please only apply if this location is accessible for you.

Shape how colleagues worldwide build the knowledge and capabilities to meet Ethics, Risk & Compliance expectations. In this role, you will lead the development, implementation and continuous improvement of learning solutions spanning mandatory compliance training, onboarding programmes, digital learning and awareness campaigns. You will create scalable learning experiences aligned with enterprise risks, regulatory, policy and business requirements, using learning technologies, data and learner feedback to strengthen training effectiveness and the overall learning experience.

About the Role

Key Responsibilities

- Lead the design, development, implementation and ongoing maintenance of global Ethics, Risk & Compliance training programmes that address enterprise risks and regulatory, policy and business requirements.

- Manage the full lifecycle of assigned compliance training courses, from assessing learning needs and developing the approach through to launch, maintenance and periodic updates.

- Develop digital learning assets across multiple formats, including e-learning, videos, microlearning, toolkits, facilitator materials and awareness resources, to deliver effective compliance learning.

- Create and maintain scalable learning content that can be used across functions and geographies while responding to different learning needs.

- Apply approved learning technologies, including artificial intelligence-enabled solutions, to develop content and improve learning effectiveness.

- Manage multiple global training projects, coordinating timelines, budgets, external vendors and development partners to deliver agreed learning solutions.

- Monitor learning metrics, learner feedback and training effectiveness, using these insights to improve learning content, delivery approaches and the overall learner experience.

Essential Requirements

- Bachelor ' s degree in Learning and Development, Education, Instructional Design, Educational Technology, Organisational Development, Psychology, Human Resources, Business Administration, Communications, Digital Media, Public Health, Healthcare Management or a related field.

- Extensive experience in Learning and Development, training, instructional design, capability building or corporate learning.

- Experience developing digital learning solutions and e-learning programmes, including learning materials across video, presentations, multimedia and facilitator-led formats.

- Experience designing curricula and structured learning programmes, with instructional design and curriculum development skills.

- Experience managing multiple global learning projects simultaneously, including project timelines, budgets, external vendors and development partners.

- Experience with learning analytics and evaluation, learning management systems, artificial intelligence-enabled content development, content governance, and awareness and change communications.

Desirable Requirements

- Experience in Ethics, Risk & Compliance, Legal, healthcare, pharmaceuticals or another highly regulated industry.

- Experience applying learning technologies to develop scalable learning content for use across different functions and geographies.
